INTERESTING FACTS

Pearl barley are the grains of barley that are mechanically extricated from their shell, husked, peeled and then polished. with so-called pearl barley mills. Because they contain plenty of carbohydrates, the round grains are a delicious and filling side dish.

Ricotta is a fresh cheese and comes from the area around Rome. However, it is not made from milk, but from whey. This is a by-product of the production of other cheese products, in particular pecorino in the past. Ricotta has a soft, crumbly texture and is slightly fragile. The mouthfeel is milky and creamy, it tastes sweet and has a slightly acidic to lemony note.
